Emory Farmers Market
Supporting our local food community on campus

HIGHLIGHTS

Through a weekly gathering of farms, restaurants, small-scale artisanal businesses, and customers from the Emory community, the Emory Farmers Market fosters education and personal relationships through food. Consumers have the opportunity to engage with small-scale producers and support the local economy, contributing to a more robust and sustainable food system.

Since 2008, the Emory Farmers Market has been a lively campus community space for local farms and businesses that offer a wide selection of fresh produce, hand-crafted goods, and diverse beverage and lunch options for students, faculty, and staff.

BENEFITS

- The Market helps carry out our Sustainability Vision goal to expand food security in the Atlanta area by “supporting the development of a food hub to aggregate, process, and preserve food from local and sustainable farmers.”

- Purchasing food from local producers greatly reduces the energy required to transport food and ensures that produce is in season, which diminishes the associated carbon footprint and negative climate implications of food choices.

- Occasional themed Markets celebrate seasonal produce or campus events, including the Tomato Festival, Peach Festival, Student Sustainability Showcase, Sustainable Food Fair, Earth Festival, and more.

HOW IT WORKS

- The Emory Farmers Market is held on Tuesdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the Cox Hall Bridge.

- The market is held year-round except during school breaks, and on a biweekly schedule in the summer.

- The Market is run, sponsored, and promoted by the Office of Sustainability Initiatives in collaboration with Emory Dining. It is governed by a subcommittee of the Sustainable Food Committee.

- Students can use Eagle and Dooley Dollars to purchase items at the Market, increasing accessibility for students and increasing profits for our vendors.
